There is the Buile doubt that Stephens is pulling the wires. Why he does not make an effort to get to Ireland himself is more than I can tell you, as I am not in his confisence. I know, however, that his friends here a few weeks ago foretood the present raing, and that Stephens declared that he was not yet played out. Jam's Stephens is accompanied in his movements by some officers of the United States satvice, who are over here, I em told, upon at month? leave. It is only to be supposed that the Buttah Government kreps a sharp took—ut on this dangerous lot, as the arrival of Stephens in Paris has teen known for weeks.

A novel and somewhat ingenious plan appears to have been latter y adopted by the Ferimos of helding their meetings without much danger of interruption from the polor. A restred neighborhood is selected, and one, or perhaps two leaders, lottered is the vicinity. He or they, as the case may be, are joined by two others, a moment's conversation enuies, and they part and pass on. Two others succeed, and the same process is gone through until I or I be couples have thus been given antilence to and received orders, and the issueries themselves their retire without fear of molestation.

Wassington. March 21, 1867.

Ein —On my return home to Texas many questions will be asked as to the extent of the dis ranchisement ask forth in the reconstruction law parsed the 21 March, and afterwards amended by the supplemental act. Does the law, as it now reads quadrambies the rank and file of the soldiers and cit zens in the Scuthern States who had never taken an oats to support the Constitution of the United States, or is it only applicable to that class of persons who had previously taken that oath, and afterwards engaged in the rebellion? Your interpretation of the law as understood there will do much in quieting speculations on the subject, and give many the opportunity of aiding by sufferage to quiet the country.

The bill he now presented was purely commercial in its character, and there ought to be no objection to pass this bil, said he, and Great Britain will be begging in six months for permission to pay the Alabama claims. He did not want the Secretary of State to have anything to do with these claims. The McCracken smelling committee was as much as he (Mr. Seward) was equal to.

Mr. Morton said this bill proposed to legislate into a law the very principle which formed the bases of the Alabama claims. To pass it now would be to stulify the American people before the world. The Senate joint resolution prohibiting persons in the diplomatic service of the United States from wearing uniforms not previously authorized by Congress, came up.

Mr. Schauck remarked that as Congress had never authorized any uniform for the Diplomatic Corps, the resolution meant that American Representatives abroad should appear only in citizens dress. What was citizens dress? Some gentlemen said it was a black cost and a white cravat and perhaps white gloves. The objection was, that abroad servants dress in precisely that style. He related how he had presented in the Bradhlan Court an American Consul who insisted on appearing in citizens dress, how the Chamberlain mistook him for a dunkey, and how the Consul was anxious to get home again, saying that he felt like a fool; that he noticed the Empress and mads of hotor inughing at him, and that no matter what Mr. Marcy's order might be he never would get to Court again making a bachy of himself by looking different from other people.
